SPAN 3317 Spanish Linguistics Three semester hours. (SP) Conducted in Spanish. This course is designed to give students insight into how the Spanish language functions as a system and why it works that way. The focus of the course will be on practical application of linguistic principles to improve the student's ability to use and perceive Spanish as an integrated linguistic system. It will present an overall view of Spanish phonology, morphology, and syntax as organized systems, pointing out to students relative correspondences and differences. Prerequisite: SPAN ~~2320 and 2327~~-3300 and 3310.
