LED 2301 Foundations in Leadership Will be a prerequisite.

New course LEDR 4202 Leadership Theory

Course number should be 4302 per email from Dr. Ferguson

Course Description:
This class is designed to emphasize the importance of leadership theories and their relevance in our daily lives. Practical application of theories will be a strong focus of the course and the application of theories to real-world situations will be explored. In addition, lectures, additional readings, and class handouts highlight research and theory for effective leadership across a variety of intercultural contexts, students will also be required to put theories into practice through group projects. Included in this course is a focus on the intercultural principles associated with being a leader and the influence of technology and globalization.

Learning Outcomes:
Students will develop critical thinking skills through in-depth analysis of leadership readings such as book chapters and research articles. Students will learn leadership theories and how theories explain, describe, predict and control and how to apply these. Students will learn the principles and practical applications of leadership through case studies, readings, research, application exercises, and self-assessment measures. Students are encouraged to participate in class discussions, develop new ideas, and explore topics in depth through readings of research articles and class projects. Students should be able to apply the knowledge gained in this course to real-world situations.

See attached sample syllabus:
COURSE DESCRIPTION
This course highlights the study of leadership theories and their application to various situations and populations. During this course, students develop a personal philosophy of leadership, and gain an understanding of how theories are applicable to real world situations. Students also learn how theories help us describe, explain, control and predict behaviors. Additionally, the study of theories gives students a foundation with which to study leadership and to develop an understanding how leaders are accountable to themselves and others. Topics concerning diversity, ethics, and leadership/followership roles are explored. Prerequisites: Completion of LEDR 2301.

Gentlemen,

We believe that the form discussing LEDR 4202 involves a typo – such a number indicates a 2-hr. course. Please verify that the course should produce 3 SCH, and thus the number should be LEDR 4302.

Thanks,

K
