Course: PSCI 5368 Seminar in International Politics Three semester hours. Selected problems and concepts related to the theory and practice of international politics. Subject may vary from semester to semester. Course may be repeated when subject matter changes.

Justification: Our plan is to allow the instructor to choose to concentrate on a specific aspect of International Relations/ International Politics in one semester and be allowed to change the area of concentration in subsequent semesters. For example: the course may be taught as IR Theory one semester, but as Ethics in IR in another semester.

Approvals:

Chair
Department Curriculum Committee

Chair
Department

Chair
College Curriculum Committee

Dean

04/2011