EDCI 5321
Collegial Coaching and Mentoring
Three semester hours.
This course addresses teacher leadership in the context of advancing the expertise and leadership of peers, thereby expanding the teacher-leader’s sphere of influence beyond the walls of the classroom. Teachers explore mentoring and coaching models designed to promote the professional growth of their colleagues. They learn and apply skills for mentoring novice teachers and for engaging in coaching relationships with peers at all stages of the teacher-development cycle. Various forms of collaboration with colleagues are addressed and diversity, as well as interpersonal and communication skills, are emphasized. Prerequisite: Graduate standing.

Student Learning Outcomes (SLOs)

1. Engage in self-examination of hidden biases that may negatively impact their interactions with others; and self-assess their personality types and identify benefits and challenges of collaborating with adults of different personalities
2. Analyze a classroom lesson debriefing session between mentor and mentee to identify effective mentoring practices
3. Apply understanding of an instructional coaching model to evaluate a coaching demonstration
4. Evaluate the needs of a collaborative colleague to determine how best to provide coaching
5. Develop plans for an instructional coaching session
6. Analyze four coaching models to determine pros and cons of each
