

South Texas Writing Project Summer Workshop Series
Friday, June 28, 2013 / 9:00am-1:00pm
Texas A&M International University – Pellegrino Hall 203

The South Texas Writing Project Workshop Series is proud to offer classroom teachers an array of Reading/Writing workshops that consist of lesson based activities reflective of STAAR exam objectives. If you are interested in exploring creative ways to teach Reading/Writing and make it fun – all the while preparing your students for the STAAR exam – then these workshops are right for you.

Workshop #3: The Writer's Toolbox - Designing and Grading Writing Assignments / To Write, or Not to Write.... do I have a choice? (Grades: 6-12+)

This workshop targeted for secondary grades will help teachers provide students with the tools to plan, organize, and develop their writing. Part 1: designing and grading writing assignments – here, teachers will discover ways to create effective writing assignments that engage and motivate a student to write; they will also find unique ways to grade these assignments that demystifies the grading of writing. Part 2: to write or not write – do I have a choice – this workshop focuses on preparing students to communicate not only with their peers but also the world at large.
