Justification:

Adding the course PHIL 4310 offers students an in-depth semester long study of key influential philosophers who have shaped Western thought and/or world culture. It also offers students more variety in course work and an opportunity to delve more deeply into the careers and thought of thinkers they may have special interests in. It also gives minors an opportunity to graduate faster by offering a greater selection of courses.

Striking the subtitle for the PSCI 4321 Special Topics course provides more flexibility for students in fulfilling the requirement regardless of what specific political theory topic is chosen in any given semester or academic year. Striking through the subtitle off the course PSCI 4321 also renders the catalog uniform in appearance as per the request of the COAS curriculum committee.
