Biography

Beth Bartolini-Salimbeni has taught Italian, Spanish, and Latin language and literature since the 1980s at both the university and the high-school levels. A former Fulbright scholar and twice an NEH fellow, she currently teaches languages, AP European History, AP World History—and the occasional university honors seminar—in Albuquerque, New Mexico. She was a member of the SAT Italian test development committee and is currently part of the AP Italian test development committee. One of her life goals is to help prepare a generation or two of polyglot citizens.
