

Associate Provost and Associate Professor of Communication at Texas A&M International University (TAMIU)

Dr. Ariadne Gonzalez is an Associate Provost and Associate Professor of Communication at Texas A&M International University (TAMIU). She holds a Ph.D. in Organizational Communication from Texas A&M University-College Station, a Master's in Communication from the University of Texas at San Antonio, and a Bachelor of Arts in Communication from TAMIU.

Her research explores issues of difference in Latino/a/x, immigrant, and transnational work-life and border life experiences. She has examined the experiences of Latino workers patrolling the Texas-Mexico border, the stigmatization of immigrant labor, and how bilingual nurses engage in job crafting and communicate resilience during the COVID-19 pandemic. Her work also investigates how workers navigate occupational identity and resilience, particularly in professions shaped by migration, bilingualism, and border dynamics. Her research has been featured in Communication Monographs, Health Communication, Howard Journal of Communication, and Frontiers in Communication, contributing to scholarly discussions on identity, resilience, and workplace dynamics.

Beyond research, Dr. Gonzalez is an experienced educator, teaching courses such as Health Communication, Organizational Communication, Leadership Communication, and Qualitative Research Methods. She has contributed to academic publications and presented her findings at national and international conferences. Her commitment to advancing knowledge on immigrant labor and border studies continues to shape conversations on identity, resilience, and workplace dynamics.
