

I send students to the Counseling Center regularly. How do I find out whether they actually went, who they saw, and what happened?

State laws protect the confidentiality of students who seek services with the Counseling Center. Therefore, information cannot be released about the student, to anyone (including parents, faculty, staff, or friends), unless we have a completed authorization form from the student.